Suicides Increasing.

The report recently issued by the State Board of Health shows that the number of suicides in Indiana have steadily increased this year.

In January the records show that 32 people took their own lives, and in June 36 committed suicide. From January to June the total number of suicides were 265. The statistics show that the most common method of suicide is by shooting and drowning. It is shown, however, that few men use poison, while this is the most prevailing method among female suicides. The bulletin shows that in the past eight months there has averaged one suicide a day in Indiana.

EXPLODING THE MYTHS OF CAPTAIN KIDD

Actual Facts in the Legendary Career of the Scotchman Who Was Accused of Piracy and for Whose Fabulous Buried Treasure Adventurers Are Still Seeking.

The buried treasure of Capt. Kidd is one of the greatest myths of modern times. Kidd's gold has been sought for 200 years. The waters of bays, rivers and lagoons have been swept for the hulk of his sunken ship. Quest of the treasure of Capt. Kidd must always be in vain, for Kidd buried no treasure, says the Philadelphia anxiously waiting to hear of his capture Kidd appeared unexpectedly in the West Indies, where he touched at Anguilla April 1, 1699, heard that he was wanted as a pirate and now decided to find Bellomont and set himself straight if he could.

Capt. Kidd was prepared to swear to Bellomont that he was innocent of piracy; that he had taken only ships which sailed under French papers, and that whatever acts of a piratical na ture he had committed were by his crew, who had mutinied, and locked him in his cabin until the piracies were accomplished. Kidd approached the land first in Delaware Bay, near Lewes, and sent ashore for supplies. He did not go ashore here, nor did he land any goods. A chest owned by James Gillam, a pirate, who was a passenger on Kidd's vessel from Madagascar, was landed here by its owner and placed in safe hands. Several people who sold Kidd supplies were on his vessel. They were later arrested and swore Kidd landed no goods.

Kidd's movements from this point on can be traced. He was anxious to communicate with his wife and friends in New York, and to that end he steered for Long Island Sound, entering it at the east end and proceeding as far as Oyster Bay. Here he went ashore and sent a messenger to New York with a letter to James Emott, a lawyer, and a message to his wife. Emott, whose practice embraced the defense of pirates, hurried to Oyster Bay and went on board Kidd's sloop, which sailed at once for Rhode Island. Here Emott was landded in Narragansett Bay, probably near Point Judith, to proceed to Boston. Lord Bellomont being there. Capt. Kidd's advocate arrived in Boston on June 13, 1699, and went at once to Bellomont's lodgings. Bellomont promised Kidd security "if he would prove himself as innocent as Emott said rim.

About June 25 Kidd headed for Boston, after taking on a pilot from Rhode Island-one Benjamin Bevins. This pilot naturally had charge of the sloop, and no treasure could have been landed without his knowledge, He was later a witness for the government. The San Antonio put in at Tarpaulin Cove, a convenient harbor on Vineyard Sound, and there Kidd landed "a bale and two barrels of goods," which were "left with the man there," to be called for on his return. The bale and barrels were duly recov ered, like all the rest of Kidd's property. The value of the goods and

TURKEY GETS REVENGE FOR TEASING 7 YEARS AGO.

Does a turkey gobbler possess the same remarkable mental faculties as does the elephant? A turkey on the farm of Amos Hollister, near Benton, Wash., was teased into anger over seven years ago by a little girl with, yellow curls. The other day the same ittle girl, now grown into womangood, wearing the dresses of the day's style, appeared upon the lawn of the same farm and was attacked by a gobbler enraged beyond all turkey sense, and continued the fight until he was subdued and placed in a pen Over seven years ago Miss Elsie Gunher visited the farm of her uncle and teased the gobbler with a cane which had ribbons tied to it. The turkey chased her around the barnyard.

The incident was forgotten and school work and business kept the niece from again visiting her uncle until seven years had passed. Mice Gunther, free from school duties and languishing for the free air of the country, went to the Benton farm last week. The first thing she did was to trip across the barnyard toward the cow pens as she had done years ago Before she was across the lawn a big turkey gobbler, the same one which attacked her seven years ago, flew at her face and sturck her a blow that almost threw her into a heap. The turkey continued his attack until Holy lister captured and imprisoned him.

At one time oxen were yoked up and driven to the river side, waiting to assist. In addition to the oxen there was one horse as leader.

This system prevailed up to the year 1832. At that period wharves did not exist; the boats drew up to the shore as close as possible and made fast to piles temporarily driven in the bank of the river.

The first records of accidents to steamboats in the St. Lawrence are those of the "Waterloo" and "John Bull." The former foundered in Lake St. Peter and was replaced by the 'John Bull," a fine boat 190 feet long, which was burned in 1838. It was re-

SPAIN'S REVOLUTION-A SCENE OF WRECKAGE.

A TRAMWAY CAR OVERTURNED BY THE RIOTERS.

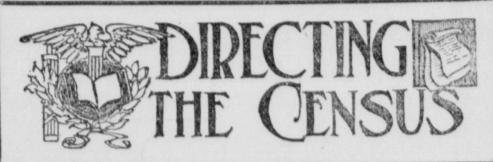

During the recent revolution in Spain the tramway system of Barcelona was attacked by the rioters at many points, the track being destroyed and cars overturned and burnt. In the fighting and rioting women and children took a conspicuous part, for the rioters when confronted with troops placed the children in the front line, the women in the second, and the men themselves formed a third. Under cover of he women and children the men attacked the police or soldiers, who were unable to discharge their rifles against defenceless women and I children.

WOMAN HELD AT SNAKE'S MERCY

From one danger into another was Mrs. Lydia Smith's predicament, when, in trying to escape a snake, she caught her hair in a wire fence and badly lacerated her scalp before she could be extricated. Mrs. Smith, who lives in Clayton, Del., while on an outing at Rehobeth, went to a small henhouse in the back yard to catch a chicken for dinner. As she entered the wire inclosed yard she found t large blacksnake lying at her feet. The frightened woman jumped back, catching her hair in the wire netting overhead, while the frightened snake g!!ded out the other way. Mrs. Smith's head was badly torn, some of the hair being pulled out by the roots.

The Director of the Census is Edwin Dana Durand, a Michigan man, born in 1871. For two years he was legislative librarian of the New York State Library. For another year he was assistant professor of administration and finance at Stanford University. From 1900 until 1902 he was secretary of the industrial commission, and for a short time before going to the census bureau as special expert he was instructor of economics at

The history of census taking in this country may be divided into three periods, determined by fundamental acts of Congress. The first of those extends from 1790 until 1850. During this period the Department of State had charge of the work, while United States marshals and their assistants supervised and collected the data. In the second period, extending from 1850 until the law of 1902 was passed, the Department of the Interior had charge of the work. The laws of 1902 and 1903 providing for the permanent organization and changing the bureau from the Interior Department to that of Commerce and Labor mark the beginning of the present epoch. As early as 1810 an attempt to include in the census information pertaining to manufactures of this country was made, though it met with little success. The act of 1850 increased the objects of inquiry to include mines, manufactures and agriculture, and with each succeeding decade the scope of inquiry has been enlarged until the mass of information has become too heavy to handle with ease, and much of it is out of date before it is put into available shape. The eleventh census was not published until seven years after it was begun. The census of 1880 appeared in 1889. For each enormous sums of money are spent, thousands of clerks are employed, tons of literature distributed.

The four principal reports of the census of 1900, those on population, agriculture, manufacturing and vital statistics, filled ten quarto volumes, (0,000 pages of printed matter, and with the special reports sustained the claim that in the matter of census taking the United States leads in scope of inquiry, combinations of facts and costs incurred.

WHERE BAD MONEY IS GOOD.

In Old Mexico Bogus Coins Are Freely Circulated.

Counterfeiters find Mexico a good field for their business. An enormous amount of spurious coin is in circulation in that country. A recoins is that they are readily accepted in the ordinary channels of trade. It is only when they get into the banks or offices of the federal state governments that they are taken up and retired from circulation. The silver peso is the principal coin counterfeited, although the coins of smaller denomination, particularly the 5-cent piece, are not below the notice of the illicit metal workers.

There is no way of estimating the amount of false coin in circulation, but it must be very large, as is evidenced by the fact that one of every ten coins of the peso denomination in the ordinary transaction of business usually is found to be spurious.

The average Mexican of the lower class is an adept in filigree and general metal work. The counterfeiting outfits usually are crude affairs, and the coins which they turn out are good specimens, considering the rough method of their manufacture. Few of the counterfeiters take the trouble to form an elaborate composition for their goods. The majority of them are content with ordinary lead. In many instances the coins are cast in brass and then plated with silver. The silver plated brass coins are kept in circulation until the plating wears off, when they are no longer accepted in the usual line of trade.

It is said that counterfeiters in Mexico have little difficu'ty in placing their product in circulation. In many instances uncovered by the police and secret service men the ccunterfeiters sold their spurious output to merchants and small dealers in different cities and the coins were passed out to customers in a systematic way so as not to attract undue attention. The patrons of these small stores and market places are people of the lower class for the most part, and the rudest kind of counterfeit coin is accepted by them without question or comment.

The counterfeiting of bank bills or stamps has not been attempted in Mexico for many years. The execution of work of this kind requires the exercise of a kind of skill that the average Mexican counterfeiter is not possessed of. The nearest approach to this kind of counterfeiting took place not long ago when many thousand dollars' worth of fraudulent street car tickets were made and sold in Mexico City. These tickets were engraved and were good imitations of the originals, but it was only a few days after they were put on the market before the fraud was discovered and its perpetrators arrested.

GETTING A BATH.

Must Go Craftily on Hunt and Stalk It From Hotel to Hotel.

The real sport in Switzerland, the occupation that keeps one all in a quiver, is getting a bath. The Swiss are economical with baths, but you can get them, if you go craftily on the hunt and stalk them from hotel

Get them? I should say you can. My friend from St. Louis found that out. He needed personal laundrying, and he saw a sign relating to baths, on the door of his room in a

"Ha!" he shouted. "Discovered! I have trailed a bath to its lair."

The bath lady came. "I desire," said my friend from St. Louis, through the crack of the wardrobe door where he was hiding, being ready, so to speak, for his rath. "I desire a bain-bath, you knowwash, water to get in-bain, BAIN, BAIN."

"Oui," said the bath lady, waving her hand at the sign on the door. "Sude," assented the man from St. Louis, "bain-you know."

"Oui," smiled the bath lady, and presently the procession began. First came un bain pieds, and then un bain de siege and finally, un graud

"Holy smoke!" yelled the man from St. Louis. "Do you think I am collecting baths? Do you think I want all the baths there are? Take some of had to take them. The attendant saw to that. If a crazy American came along and desired all the baths in stock, far be it from the Swiss hotelkeeper to disappoint him. Also, far be it from him not to remember the

To many persons who are not actors the stage seems a delightful and fascinating place. In a book called "The Actress," Louise Closser Hale, herself an actress, tells some of her experiences with girls who envy her her profession. One day one of them, from behind a counter in a shop, said, "I should have went on the stage."

"She evidently wanted to talk, and I strove to be interested," says Miss

"But see how tired I am," I said to her. "I have to work very hard as it is, and I had to work much harder to gain what little recognition I have

"Do you know of any woman who ever received any benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-

If any woman who is suffering with any ailment peculiar to her sex will ask her neighbors this question, she will be surprised at the result. There is hardly a community in this country where women cannot be found who have been restored to health by this famous old remedy, made exclusively from a simple formula of roots and herbs.

During the past 30 years we have published thousands of letters from these grateful women who have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and never in all that time have we published a testimonial without the writer's special permission. Never have we knowingly published a testimonial that was not truthful and genuine. Here is one just received a few days ago. If anyone doubts that this is a true and honest statement of a woman's experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound write and ask her.

Houston, Texas.—" When I first began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a total wreck. I had been sick for three years with female troubles, chronic dyspepsia, and a liver trouble. I had tried several doctor's medicines, but nothing did me any good.

"For three years I lived on medicines and thought I would never get well, when I read an advertisment of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and was advised to try it.

"My husband got me one bottle of the Compound, and it did me so much good I continued its use. I am now a well woman and enjoy the best of health.

"I advise all women suffering from such troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. They won't regret it, for it will surely cure you." - Mrs. Bessie L. Hicks, 819 Cleveland St., Houston.

Any woman who is sick and suffering is foolish surely not to give such a medicine as this a trial. Why should it not do her as much good as it did Mrs. Hicks.

The next morning when the damsel arose and found the tree, she knew, by love's unerring instinct, who had placed it there and sent to the bashful youth an invitation to call. EASTMAN'S EFFECTS SOLD.

Property of Mrs. Woodill's Slayer Purchased as Relics.

All of the personal effects of the late "Lame Bob" Eastman, the murderer of Mrs. Edith May Woodill, and himself a suicide, were sold at auction the other day in Easton, Md. They were auctioned off by an attorney for Mrs. Lavinia Eastman, the administratrix. There was a large attendance and the bidding was brisk, many of the articles bringing several times their real value, many persons wanting them for keepsakes. Eastman's motor boat, in which Mrs. Woodill took her fatal ride to his bungalow, brought $285, and went to George B. Tayler. The oars belonging to his boat were bought by Neil Shanahan at three times their value. Other articles sold were the revolver with which Eastman killed himself, a barrel of alcohol, and his dishes and furniture, all of which brought good prices as relics of the double tragedy. The crowd came in autos, carriages and launches.

SENSE ABOUT FOOD.

Facts About Food Worth Knowing. It is a serious question sometimes to know just what to eat when a person's stomach is out of order and most foods cause trouble. Grape-Nuts food can be taken at any time with the certainty that it will digest. Actual experience of people is valuable to anyone interested in foods.

A Terre Haute woman writes: "I had suffered with indigestion for about four years, ever since an attack of typhoid fever, and at times could eat nothing but the very lightest food, and then suffer such agony with my stomach I would wish I never had to eat anything.

"I was urged to try Grape-Nuts and since using it I do not have to starve myself any more, but I can eat it at any time and feel nourished and satisfied, dyspepsia is a thing of the past, and I am now strong and well.

"My husband also had an experience with Grape-Nuts. He was very weak and sickly in the spring. Could not attend to his work. He was put under the doctor's care but medicine did not seem to do him any good until he began to leave off ordinary food and use Grape-Nuts. It was positively surprising to see the change in him. He grew better right off, and naturally he has none but words of praise for Grape-Nuts.

"Our boy thinks he cannot eat & meal without Grape-Nuts, and he learns so fast at school that his teacher and other scholars comment on it. I am satisfied that it is because of the great nourishing elements in Grape-

Nuts." "There's a Reason."

It is a pity that people do not know what to feed their children. There are many mothers who give their youngsters almost any kind of food and when they become sick begin to pour the medicine down them. The real way is to stick to proper food and be healthy and get along without medicine and

THE GOSPEL OF DISCONTENT.

It Has Been the Mainspring of Every Step in Human Progress. A short time ago John Mitchell, formerly president of the United Mine Workers of America, delivered a speech in which the following passage occurred:

"I hope the time will never arrive when working people will become satisfled; I would regret sadly if the workers of our country should become absolutely contented. I believe they always should want more and I say this not because I am an advocate of unwise discontent, but because I have interest in this country's institutions and would like to see them perpetuated. It is by the gradual elevation of labor's plane that they can be perpetuated."

Commenting upon this the Philadelphia North American says:

We have heard moving sermons on the beauties of contentment. We have read pages of hectic execration against "the gospel of discontent." But we still believe that it is largely because of discontent that the Herbert Spencers or Charles Darwins of the temperate zone differ from the . Bushman chief in Central Africa and, perhaps, from the anthropoid that swings in the branches above the Bushman's head.

Some time in the history of the human race, it may have been thousands or millions of years ago, there came a moment when a half upright biped, covered with reddish brown hair, realized momentarily the degradation of walking on his knuckles. That was the first gleam of discontent and the beginning of civilization.

Every step forward in all the ages since has had discontent as its mainspring. It was discontent that toppled the primitive idols from their thrones and seated as gods the ideals of a dawning intellectual era. It was discontent that hurled the corrupted Olympians to earth and made monotheism the religion of the white race. It was discontent, that scattered the mists of medieval superstition. It is discontent that is applying the test of works to modern religions.

Discontent made ancient Rome a republic, freed the serfs of feudalism, exploded the divine right of kings, abolished chattel slavery in the western world.

Discontent gave us the spinning Jenny and the steam engine, the electric light and the wireless telegraph, the submarine and the aeroplane.

Discontent is striking the shackles of privilege from American business, emancipating the children from the factories and putting them into the schools, prying into nature's secrets for the ammunition with which to fight against the white plague and the Discontent is marshaling the forces of decency for a war of extermination on civic unrighteousness.

Contentment is stagnation and death. Because of the happy aphorism of a popular writer, there has been a disposition to believe that corruption produces contentment. The obverse is true. It is contentment that produces corruption.

The nation that is contented is mor-1bund, the religion that is contented is idle form, the character that is contented is a gaudy prig, or a decadent nonentity.

Discontent does not necessarily mean unhappiness nor wasteful strife. We say with Mr. Mitchell: May the American worker never be contented. And that to us means: May the Amer ican capitalist never be contented. May doctor, lawyer, housewife, editor, tradesman, laborer never be contented. May the American nation always know the divine urge of discontent.

For when the time comes that a people are contented that time marks the high tide of material and moral progress and the beginning of decay.

A MERCHANT OF FEZ.

His Career May End in Disgrace by an Enemy's False Charge. The merchants of Fez are to be found all over Morocco. Their representatives are engaged in commerce in all the cities from Sus to the Mediterranean, and they have even several offices in Manchester for the purchase of calico, says the London Daily Graphic. In due course Ali Mahmoud launches out into business on a large scale. He prospers exceedingly, and presently purchases a black female slave to assist his wife in her duties. He takes a house in the Medina quarter of Fez overlooking the pleasant olive groves to the south of the city. In course of time he buys two more slaves and is fairly set up as a householder.

When his first daughter is born there is great rejoicing, for the birth of a daughter as first born is regarded by the Moors as a happy omen. The baby is immediately stained all over with henna, then smeared liberally with butter and wrapped in woolen cloths. On the seventh day these are removed and the child is washed for the first time. When the girl has reached her first year her helped health and diminished sickness head is shaved, leaving a little tuft by among persons who used to be our which Mohammed could catch her up to heaven if he were so disposed. In her seventh year her hair has grown again. She is then veiled and her proud father sets about looking for a husband for her. It is still the custom to betroth children from infancy.

Ali Mahmoud prospers and, save for a few domestic troubles, his life runs smoothly. Perhaps he has lost two of his female slaves or rather one has been beaten by his jealous wife and run to sanctuary. From the mosque she claims to be resold, and he has to obey the law of slaves. The other regains her freedom by bearing a child. These negress slaves enjoy a much better time than their Moorish mistresses. They are not bound by iron laws and customs. They may go unveiled in the streets, and if ill-treated they have their remedy.

In the evenings Ali will sit and smoke in the bosom of his family. Thursdays and Saturdays he visits his friends. They pass the time in simple games of cards or in listening to the weird efforts of itinerant musicians. Our merchant gets stout as he approaches middle age. One day his world tumbles about him. Such is the uncertainty of fate in Morocco.

He is serving in his shop when the customer suddenly raises his voice and cries out that he is getting false weight. The accusation is terrible, and Ali vehemently protests his innocence. It is an arranged charge by an enemy of the merchant, who philoophically bows his head saying, "Kismet! Mine enemy has found me and the serpent requires milk." The arbitrators are called, and, having been bribed previously, they find Mahmoud guilty and sentence him to the usual punishment meted out to givers of false weights. He is dragged to the southern wall of the city, to a place where a tall gibbet is erected. A rope is made fast to his right wrist, and he is hoisted up until his toes can just touch the ground. Here he is left till sunset. The idlers jeer at him and the gamins of the quarter pelt him with stones and refuse. At sundown his friends carry him home—a poor, bruised and senseless body. Broken and disgraced, thus ends his career as a respectable

A certain physician who up to a year or two ago took pride in his enormous practice, admits that movements along the lines of the New Thought and Emmanuelism have had no little influence in diminishing the public that comes to the doctors.

'You may well realize," 'what a difference the growth of these schools has made when you see the number of organizations made up of persons who no longer go to the doctors for relief. The spread of these religions has done much to decrease the number of patients."

STREET CAR MANNERS.

The Street Car Hog Was Trained When He Was a Pig.

Gentlemen are called so bceause they have good manners. I wonder why more gentlemen do not ride in the street cars. It may be that they have automobiles.

The other day a person known as a street car hog was choked so bad that he got real black in the face. This happened in New York. The man who choked him was trying to teach him to be polite. But you can't teach a hog much. If every street car hog got choked the right of way would be clogged with pork.

In this town I never saw a man take a woman and pull her out of a seat and take it himself, says a writer in a Philadelphia paper. So manners might be worse here than they are.

Men get into seats, though, and stay there, while tired old women with "The motors have undeniably had baskets swing from the strap. The men do not pretend to be reading. That used to be the way, and it was is out of date now.

But, perhaps, the women are partly to blame. They do not teach their little boys to give up seats to other women. They used to forget to thank the men, too, for giving them their seats. For men did do this once. When a woman brings a sturdy lad into a crowded car she puts him into the only vacant seat and then glares | tures. around for another.

To a degree this reflects upon the intelligence of the detective force, yet in justice to the police the difficulties confronting those who set out to trail assassins in a big city should not be overlooked. It is easy to clamor against the police when a murder mystery remains unsolved, but it is well to remember that all great centers of population have their mysterious crimes and their unraveled clews, and that this is as true of European cities, where the science of detection has been brought to its highest estate, as it is of cities in the United States. There are innumerable holes and corners in this huge metropolis, where the taking of life can be accomplished without the cries of the victim being heard by any human being. The ease with which a man choked and beat a woman to death in a dark and obscure hallway on East 13th street the other night and then coolly slipped away from the neighborhood of his crime, is typical of the facilities the city offers to criminals of the worst sort. There are hundreds of tenements on the East and West Sides of Manhattan where the sounds of a fatal scuffle would attract no more than gend which they accept as gospel. passing attention from people accustomed to drunken brawls and family ceived by the tip of the tongue; the squabbles.

And not more difficult than the commission of crime is the escape of the criminal after crime has been committed. Give to a murderer a reasonable start and there is no place in the world where he can so readily cover vicinity of the famous walls almost up his tracks and escape notice as in a city of 4,000,000 people. And this is more especially true in those cases where a fugitive can count on the assistance of friends to help in baffling the police, an assistance too commonly rendered in the foreign quarters of New York.

Earned the Money.

The new principal of New College. Edinburgh, Dr. Alexander Whyte, was asked on one occasion by a Highland for work in the north. Dr. Whyte regretted that he could not afford to assist the Highlander, but advised him to visit a wealthy layman in the city. The latter was not only disinclined to give but ungracious in manner.

Nettled at his reception, the Highlander answered brusquely. Resenting the tone, the rich man asked: "And whom do you take me for?"

"A hell deserving sinner, like myself," came the quick retort. Returning to Mr. Whyte, he explained the circumstances. "You didn't say that?" eagerly asked the strongest points in its favor, and is one of the principal reasons why it is the most widely known and universally used of all blood medicines. A great many of the so-called blood purifiers are really nothing more than strong mineral mixtures which act so unpleasantly and disastrously on the delicate membranes and tissues of the stomach and bowels, that even if such treatment purified the blood, the condition in which the digestive system is left would often be more damaging to the health than the original trouble. Not so with S. S. S.—it is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and at the same time is an absolutely safe and harmless remedy. It is made entirely of the healing and cleansing extracts and juices of roots, herbs and barks, each of which is in daily use in some form by physicians in their practice. Years of work and research have proven S. S. S. to contain everything necessary to purify the blood and at the same time supply the system with the purest and best tonic effects. S.S.S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh. Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison and all other blood troubles, and it leaves the system in perfect condition when it has purified the blood. R. K. McClure Farm IN JENNINGS CO., IND.

ON SEPTEMBER 23rd, 1909.

On the premises, the day above mentioned, at 12 o'clock Noon, we will offer this farm of 254 acres to the highest bidder. This farm is situated on the Muscatatuck River 8 miles N. E. of North Vernon and 11/2 miles N. W. of Butlerville, a station on the B. & O. R. R. It is a good farm in a neighborhood of good farms, with a 9-room 2-story frame residence, a large barn that will shelter from 80 to 100 head of stock, a large apple orchard and other fruit. Abundantly supplied with lasting water which should make it an ideal stock farm. It fronts on a Public Road about 1 mile which renders it susceptible of division into 3 tracts each with a front on a Public Road. It will be offered in three tracts and then as a whole and will be sold in that way which aggregates the most money. About 120 acres now in grass, about 60 acres ready for wheat. The school system in Indiana is of the best, which guarantees the facilities for education at a minimum cost.

Terms of sale \(\frac{1}{3} \) cash on delivery of a deed conveying a good and merchantable Title, the balance in equal payments on or before 1 and 2 years with six per cent. interest per annum, payable annually.
